

Focus on health

REGION - The inaugural National Centre for Farmer Health (NCFH) conference in October has been swamped by national and international applications from speakers.

This guarantees it will be one of 2010's must-events in the area of rural health and wellbeing.

NCFH director, associate clinical professor, Sue Brumby said she was overwhelmed by the presentations received by organisers and sponsors.

"This has enabled us to invite speakers and delegates coming from the US, UK and Sweden to attend the conference which is being held in Hamilton on October 11 to 13." professor Brumby said.