

Health conference

THE National Centre for Farmer Health invites health professionals and agri-professionals to provide research, policy practice, personal stories and posters reflecting the themes of its inaugural conference. The conference will be held from October 11-13 at Hamilton, Victoria. Individuals with an interest in agriculture, farming, health research, evaluation of education programs or educational innovation are invited to submit abstracts/stories for presentation. For more information, visit www.farmerhealth.org.au