

SFF program in Hamilton late August

LOCAL farmers are urged to attend a Sustainable Farm Families program in the Hamilton region being held by Western District Health Service on August 27 and 28.

Over two days, the free program includes a health assessment and has been praised by previous farmers who attended previously.

Sustainable Farm Families presenter Susan Brumby said: "All farmers have spoken very highly about the program and the impact it had on them, their farm and their family.

"One hundred per cent said they would recommend the program to other farmers."

Hamilton's Pastoral and Agricultural Society is a key partner in the award winning program, and is calling on interested farming families wishing to be involved in this program to contact WDHS.

For more information and registration contact Tamara Sharrock at the Frances Hewett Community Service on 5551 8495.